St̩ Martin was created in 2024 by Carl J. Kurtz for the class Ghostly Presences at the HAW-Hamburg, in which the students examined the 19th-century Parisian printer Jean-Alexis Rouchon. To highlight some typographical peculiarities found in his work, they chose to apply them onto the sans-serif base Amiamie, an open-source typeface created by Mirat-Masson in 2022. Amiamie itself is based on an open-source typeface called Aileron, designed by Sora Sagano in 2014 for TipoType. Read more about St̩ Martin at github.com/CarlJKurtz/st.martin

About St Martin

8,5 / 12 pt. Regular

St Martin was created in 2024 by Carl J. Kurtz for the class Ghostly Presences at the HAW-Hamburg, in which the students examined the works of the 19th-century Parisian printer Jean-Alexis Rouchon.

Some lowercase letters in some of his works (Most notably a, r, and n.) show an almost pixel-like bracket which looks like parts of the letters were shifted horizontally. This shift is always the height of slab serifs and occurs every time a curved shape meets a stem. Because of the consistency, I am sure, that this must be a stylistic decision and not a mistake. We did speculate on the origins of this effect. Maybe the typeface was constructed from different overlapping components and applied by a stenciling process. But then, where would you reuse the bowl of the lowercase a?

To highlight these typographical peculiarities we chose to apply them onto the sans-serif typeface Amiamie, an open-source typeface created by Mirat-Masson in 2022. Amiamie itself is based on an open-source typeface called Aileron, designed by Sora Sagano in 2014 for TipoType.

12/17 pt. Regular

Alice was beginning to get very tired of sitting by her sister on the bank, and of having nothing to do: once or twice she had peeped into the book her sister was reading, but it had no pictures or conversations in it, “and what is the use of a book,” thought Alice “without pictures or conversations?”

So she was considering in her own mind (as well as she could, for the hot day made her feel very sleepy and stupid), whether the pleasure of making a daisy-chain would be worth the trouble of getting up and picking the daisies, when suddenly a White Rabbit with pink eyes ran close by her.

There was nothing so very remarkable in that; nor did Alice think it so very much out of the way to hear the Rabbit say to itself, “Oh dear! Oh dear! I shall be late!” (when she thought it over afterwards, it occurred to her that she ought to have wondered at this, but at the time it all seemed quite natural); but when the Rabbit actually took a watch out of its waistcoat-pocket, and looked at it, and then hurried on, Alice started to her feet, for it flashed across her mind that she had never before seen a rabbit with either a waistcoat-pocket, or a watch to take out of it, and burning with curiosity, she ran across the field after it, and fortunately was just in time to see it pop down a large rabbit-hole under the hedge.

“Well!” thought Alice to herself, “after such a fall as this, I shall think nothing of tumbling down stairs! How brave they’ll all think me at home! Why, I wouldn’t say anything about it, even if I fell off the top of the house!” (Which was very likely true.)

14/20 pt. Bold

Down, down, down. There was nothing else to do, so Alice soon began talking again. “Dinah’ll miss me very much to-night, I should think!” (Dinah was the cat.) “I hope they’ll remember her saucer of milk at tea-time. Dinah my dear! I wish you were down here with me! There are no mice in the air, I’m afraid, but you might catch a bat, and that’s very like a mouse, you know. But do cats eat bats, I wonder?” And here Alice began to get rather sleepy, and went on saying to herself, in a dreamy sort of way, “Do cats eat bats? Do cats eat bats?” and sometimes, “Do bats eat cats?” for, you see, as she couldn’t answer either question, it didn’t much matter which way she put it. She felt that she was dozing off, and had just begun to dream that she was walking hand in hand with Dinah, and saying to her very earnestly, “Now, Dinah, tell me the truth: did you ever eat a bat?” when suddenly, thump! thump! down she came upon a heap of sticks and dry leaves, and the fall was over.
